High Side: What is High Side? The most common High Side we may hear about occurs when a rear brake is locked and the rear tire loses traction. The tire moves out of line with the front tire's path of travel. When the rear brake is released and the tire begins to roll, it instantly grabs traction and snaps back into line with the front tire. This violent and sudden thrust can pitch or catapult a rider off the High Side of the motorcycle.

GL1800 GPS: This class will teach you all you wish to know about programming and using the GPS on the GL1800 Gold Wing. If time permits other GPS's will be covered.
